

Professional Development II: Publication

COLT 603, #22089D, Spring 2009, Wednesdays, 3:30-4:50 p.m., THH 121

This two-unit course concentrates on how to publish one's ideas orally, through conferences, and in print: how to prepare a book review, an article, or a book manuscript for submission; how to choose a journal or a press; and the editorial process from consideration of a manuscript through final publication. The course will also encourage students to reflect on their goals and self-understanding as scholars and will help prepare them for careers as researchers. By the end of the course, each student will produce the manuscript of an article ready for submission to a journal.

The course will meet every other week in two-hour sessions. Students at or near the end of course-work or at the dissertation stage are especially encouraged to take the course, but all graduate students at any stage of their programs are welcome.

Professor Peggy Kamuf

kamuf@usc.edu, THH 161B, x00101